Usability and User Experience 2019/2020

Our proposal

The design we propose retains the services and content offered by SIPO, but aims at improving the user experience of the website.

We also suggest the insertion of two new features: the user's personal profile and a search function.

Users goals and needs

We decided to focus on the age group 18-29 and address their absence from a platform like SIPO offering free or paid services, from which they could benefit. With our design proposal we address their need to:

- be efficient when looking for information and completing tasks
- feel secure about the privacy and the quality of the online therapy sessions
- be aware of the organization behind the website and be assured about its reliability
- avoid frustration when trying to complete important tasks
- feel at ease while using the website

In order to address the user needs and concerns previously mentioned we propose:

- reducing the information overload and increasing the intuitiveness of navigation
- explicitly state quality assurance and privacy policy regarding the sessions, as well as indirectly conveying an atmosphere of professionalism
- dedicating a section of the website to information about SIPO and ways to contact them
- reducing the number of actions required to complete a task
- creating a visually pleasing effect, with appropriate images and colors

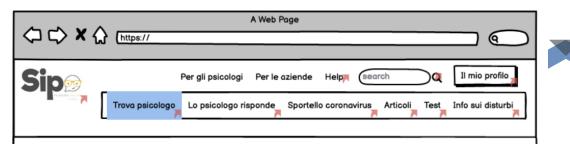

Homepage

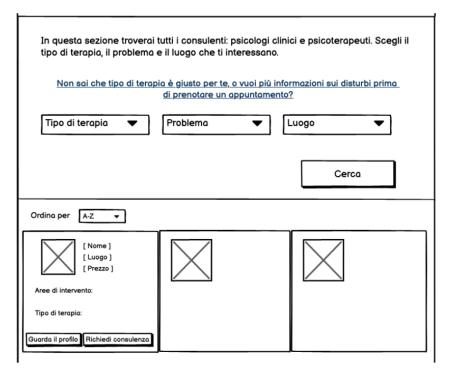

- Less items
- Less distracting information
- Less use of caps lock
- Use of call to actions
- It is clear what the site is about

Trova psicologo

- Users are told which page they are viewing
- The drop down menu item is now clearer
- The number of steps to book an appointment has been reduced

Book an appointment

- Users are given a feedback if they make mistakes
- The number of actions and fields required is reduced and easier
- Form structure keeps an external consistency
